Natural gas supplies rise more than expected

Published: Sep 15, 2011 | The Associated Press

Natural gas stockpiles rose more than expected last week, the government said Thursday, sending the price of the fuel lower.

The Energy Department's Energy Information Administration said in its weekly report that natural gas inventories held in underground storage in the lower 48 states increased by 87 billion cubic feet to about 3.11 trillion cubic feet for the week that ended Sept. 9.

Analysts expected an increase of between 81 billion and 85 billion cubic feet, according to a survey by Platts, the energy information arm of McGraw-Hill Cos.

The inventory level was 1.6 percent below the five-year average of about 3.16 trillion cubic feet, and 4.3 percent lower than last year's storage level of 3.25 trillion cubic feet, according to the government data.

Natural gas dropped 10.6 cents, about 2.5 percent, to $3.933 per 1,000 cubic feet on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Oil tops $90 after ECB bank plan

Published: Sep 15, 2011 - 11:13 AM ET | Bloomberg News

Crude oil increased, topping $90 a barrel, after the European Central Bank announced it will lend euro-area banks dollars to help tame the region's credit crisis.

Futures rose as much as 1.3 percent after the Frankfurt-based ECB said it would coordinate the action with the Federal Reserve, the Bank of England, the Bank of Japan and the Swiss National Bank. Oil also climbed when German and French leaders said they're certain Greece will stay in the euro zone, curbing concern that the region's debt crisis will reduce fuel demand.

"The market is highly reactive to the ebb and flow of headlines about the euro-zone debt crisis," said John Kilduff, a partner at Again Capital LLC, a New York-based hedge fund that focuses on energy. "This should strengthen the euro, reduce the need for the dollar as a safe haven, and put us in commodity rally mode again."

Crude oil for October delivery rose $1.11, or 1.2 percent, to $90.02 a barrel at 10:04 a.m. on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Prices are up 18 percent over the past year. The contract dropped to $88.01 earlier today.

Brent oil for October settlement climbed $2.69, or 2.4 percent, to $115.09 on the London-based ICE Futures Europe exchange. The contract expires today. The more active November future was up $2.80, or 2.6 percent, to $112.45.

The dollar dropped 0.9 percent to $1.3888 against the euro from $1.3755 yesterday. A weaker U.S. currency increases the appeal of dollar-denominated raw materials as an investment. The Standard & Poor's 500 Index rose 1.2 percent to 1,202.91 and the Dow Jones Industrial Average advanced 1.3 percent to 11,387.54.

The ECB loans are in addition to the bank's regular seven-day dollar offerings and will be conducted as fixed-rate tenders with full allotment, the ECB said in a statement today. It will offer the loans on Oct. 12, Nov. 9 and Dec. 7.

U.S. prices dropped earlier after reports showed applications for unemployment benefits rose last week to the highest level since the end of June and manufacturing in the New York area contracted. Jobless claims climbed by 11,000 to 428,000 in the week ended Sept. 10 that included the Labor Day holiday, figures from the Labor Department showed.

Patriot Energy encourages all clients to assess their exposure to energy markets to determine if now is an opportune time to extend contracts or develop forward looking strategies given unique business circumstances.
